CONFERENCE DESCRIPTION

Join us for the second Thomas Jefferson University conference designed specifically for infertility counseling sponsored by the Department of Obstetrics & Gynecology in Philadelphia, PA. Clinicians are facing more challenges for infertility counseling due to advances in the assisted reproductive technologies and the associated psychological, ethical and legal issues that accompany those advancements. The first day will introduce fundamental concepts and skills needed for the many aspects of working with individuals needing assistance to build their families. The second and third days are more advanced training drawn from "real life" cases as well as ethics training, and a novel "psychology lab" (using live actors) for exploration of the inter-professional challenges associated with complex clinical cases.

CONFERENCE OBJECTIVES

Wednesday, May 13: Fundamentals

At the conclusion, participants should be able to:

- Describe the different types of families made possible by ART, gamete donation and surrogacy
- Summarize the legal issues and challenges for families of ART, gamete donation and surrogacy
- Identify some of the challenges to providers in counseling these new ART families

Thursday, May 14: Advanced Counseling

At the conclusion, participants should be able to:

- Describe the current psychological issues for each stakeholder with egg freezing and emerging professional standards
- Summarize how psychopharmacology issues are considered when treating intended parents
- Discuss the different roles for mental health professionals with educating, counseling and screening stakeholders

Friday, May 15: Ethics

At the conclusion, participants should be able to:

- Identify the psychosocial challenges for oncology patients and family building
- Identify areas of conflict for partners pursuing parenthood
- Describe the ethical considerations in third party parenting.

SYLLABUS MATERIALS

All registrants will be provided a USB flash drive at the course. The USB flash drive will contain all presentations. Please be sure to bring your laptop so you may access course materials. Note taking materials will be available on-site.
